

Female Doctorate Recipient Representation, Funding, and Debt

More females have been earning PhDs in life sciences over time.

Despite gender parity in overall representation, female life science doctorate recipients use more of their own resources to support educational and living expenses during graduate school.

Compared to males, fewer female PhD recipients have no graduate debt, and more amass more than $30,000 in graduate debt.

